

USLAW NETWORK PUBLISHES THREE NATIONAL COMPENDIA OF LAW FOR CONSTRUCTION, RETAIL & HOSPITALITY, AND TRANSPORTATION & LOGISTICS; JSH ATTORNEYS AUTHOR ARIZONA CHAPTERS

May 11, 2021 | News

USLAW NETWORK has released three Compendia of Law, with state-by-state chapter updates provided by USLAW member firms. JSH attorneys provided the updates for the Arizona chapters of the Construction, Retail and Hospitality, and Transportation and Logistics Compendia.

JSH construction defense attorneys Michael Ludwig and John Gregory updated the Arizona Chapter of this compendium, a multi-state resource that addresses legal questions involving state-by-state common and statutory law. The Compendium focuses on the procedural aspects of the law so that clients of USLAW member firms have a reliable resource at their fingertips.

RETAIL AND HOSPITALITY COMPENDIUM OF LAW:

JSH partner Jeremy Johnson provided the update for the Retail and Hospitality Compendium of Law for Arizona. The ownership and management of retail establishments, shopping and hospitality centers is entwined with exposure to all sorts of liabilities. This Compendium is designed to permit users to easily access common and state specific liability issues.

TRANSPORTATION AND LOGISTICS COMPENDIUM OF LAW:

JSH partner Phil Stanfield updated the Transportation and Logistics Compendium for Arizona. This compendium is a survey of state law on various issues associated with the derivative negligence claims of negligent entrustment, hiring, retention and supervision in truck accident cases. It examines the elements of proof of each theory by which an employer might be held to have derivative or dependent liability for the conduct of an employee or independent operator, defenses that can be asserted to such claims and whether such theories can support a claim of punitive damages.
